

NEGROES HEAR B. WASHINGTON AT $2 A HEAD

Hundreds of Well Dressed Colored Men and Women Pay Membership Fee to Get Into National Educational Association Meeting.

NOTED EDUCATOR DEFENDS CITIZENSHIP OF HIS RACE

Criminal Element Among Negroes, He Declares, Is Confined Almost Wholly to Those Having Little or No Education.

Booker T. Washington was a magnet which attracted to Festival Hall at the Fair Thursday an army of well-dressed negroes.

Mr. Washington's speech before the National Educational Association was scheduled to begin at 10:30 o'clock. Two hours before that time scores and hundreds of negroes were seeking admission to the hall.

None save those who had membership badges of the National Educational Association were admitted, and there was a rush for the badges, each of which cost $2. An hour before Mr. Washington began his speech there were 400 negroes in the audience, and before he began his speech 100 more had come in.

At that, the negroes were greatly in the minority, for the hall, which seats between 300 and 400, was filled. All the prominent educators in attendance at the convention were present, and the distinguished negro educator was shown marked attention.

Mr. Washington was third on the list of speakers. He said in part:

"Education has taught the negro the beauty of work; the disgrace of idleness. Not 10 per cent of the negroes are without knowledge of a trade and 5 per cent are illiterate. This alone disproves the assertion I have quoted. If the northern negro is more criminal than his brother of the South it is because the North withholds from him the opportunity of employment that the South gives. The negro charged with crime is, as a rule, not the educated negro, but the one with a mere smattering of education or who is in total ignorance."

The negro orator was given a magnificent ovation, and hundreds of people of all nationalities and all stations in life crowded upon the stage to shake hands with him.

Europeans, Americans, Chinese, Japanese, Filipinos and women of all other nationalities assembled at the Fair, crowded about him and insisted on shaking hands.

In the number were scores of negroes who had assembled at the hall in greater numbers than at any other time, mingled with the other races in doing honor to him.

The crush finally became so great that the stage had to be cleared.

The nomination of Thursday of the National Educational Association named in the name of W. H. Maxwell as president for the ensuing year, and named as the only name mentioned, the action of the committee practically amounted to an election.

Mr. Maxwell is at present the superintendent of the public schools of Greater New York.

The officers as nominated were elected shortly after noon.

The committee also recommended that the association admit to membership delegates from Alaska, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippine Islands, and named as such delegates:

From Alaska, Miss Cassie Patton of Sitka; from Porto Rico, Samuel McCune Lindsay of San Juan; from Hawaii, Charles B. Pyke of Honolulu; and from the Philippines, C. H. Maxson of Manila.

Negro Education Is Successful.

"From the point of view of self-help and intellectual growth, the education of the negro has been a success. After years of civilization and opportunity in Italy 35 per cent of the population is illiterate. In Spain 65 per cent, in Russia 75 per cent, in the average South American country 80 per cent, while after 40 years of freedom and opportunity the negro has only 44 per cent of illiteracy to his credit."

"These are anxious days for my race and serious effort is ahead, but our success will finally come by our learning to exercise the patience, self-control and courage which will make us begin at the bottom and lay the foundation of our growth in the skillful cultivation of the soil, the possession of a bank account and the application of the highest culture of heart, hand and head to the thing which the time needs to have done."

"The negro does not seek to exercise political supremacy over the white man, nor is social interference with any race considered by the negro as essential to his progress."

"The negro is proud of his racial identity. You of the white race do not know the heart that is beating among my people. Many of you know more of the best in Japanese, Italian and French life than that of the negro race."

"A people should be judged by their best, not their worst. One should see the negro in his industrial and business occupations and especially in his church, school and home life before passing judgment."

"If negro teachers, let us all teach the children that in proportion as they lift their heads to aspire to the highest, they are degraded and weakened, but in so much as they are elevated and strengthened by the highest and most unpretentious of the human."

WATCHMAN WHO PREVENTED EXPLOSION AND WOMAN HE RESCUED FROM FIRE

WATCHMAN HERO; SAVES TWO LIVES

Officer Weinberger Shoots Holes in Gasoline Tank at Maplewood and Prevented Explosion.

CARRIED WOMAN TO SAFETY

Reached Sleeping Apartments of W. H. Nelson and Wife to Find Them Filled With Smoke.

Everyone in Maplewood is praising Watchman O. S. Weinberger who broke open the door of the room occupied by Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Nelson, 715 Maple boulevard, Maplewood, Wednesday night, wakened them in time to make their escape from flames and smoke that were rapidly filling their room, and then punctured a 10-gallon tank of gasoline in the yard near the store with bullets, preventing an explosion of the tank, which was becoming hot from the flames.

The fire which Watchman Weinberger is the hero started about 10 o'clock Wednesday night, presumably from electric wires. The total loss was approximately $200. The two-story frame building at 715 Maple boulevard, occupied on the first floor by Mr. and Mrs. Nelson, who live downstairs, and the grocery store of C. H. Hall, in the second story was Maplewood, used by a number of lodges and the Maplewood Methodist Episcopal church. The fire burned an hour and a half, completely destroying the building and its contents. The total loss was approximately $200. The insurance is about $400. The building was owned by August May, 2212 January avenue.

The fire was discovered by a young man who refused to give his name, about 10:20 o'clock. He saw the flames coming from the building, which burned rapidly. He shouts attracted Watchman Weinberger, who turned in an alarm, to which one fire company from Clifton Heights responded.

Rushing to the burning building which, by that time, was afire in every part, Weinberger and the young man tried to waken Nelson, who they knew lived at the rear of the grocery store. They failed, however, to get into the room. The noise wakened Nelson.

When he awoke he found the room full of smoke and the walls were afire. He tried to arouse his wife, but she was partly unconscious from the effects of the smoke and did not respond. He shook her, but she turned over sleepily and refused to rise.

Then he took her in his arms and carried her out of the room. He and the young man succeeded in making one trip into the burning room and securing the contents of which were of small value.

Turning from trying to save the household effects of the Nelsons, Weinberger noticed a large gasoline tank on a stand in the heat from the fire. He saw that the odor of gas from the tank was noticed by the crowd.

"We'll have to burst that tank or there'll be an explosion," Weinberger shouted. Rushing to the tank, he fired two shots. The crowd scattered at his warning and caught fire, but it did not explode. Weinberger's shooting had been in time.

The losses on the building and its contents are divided as follows: Building owned by August May, loss $200, insured, grocery stock of C. H. Hall, loss $200, insured, household goods of W. H. Nelson, loss $200, insured, $400; Knights of Pythias lodge room paraphernalia, loss $200, insured, $400; Maplewood Hall furniture, owned by E. S. Handman, loss estimated at $500, no insurance; other lodge losses, together with books of M. E. Sunday school, $150, no insurance.

Water Too Cold For Would-Be Suicide

Reading, Pa. Man, With $80, Wet and Muddy, Found by Policeman, After He Had Changed His Mind.

A man giving the name of Ed Young and saying he was from Reading, Pa., was found by a policeman in the Burlington railroad yards at the foot of Prairie avenue Thursday morning, with his clothing wet and muddy.

He carried a leather satchel, in which was a lot of wearing apparel, the linen having recently been laundered at a Reading, Pa., laundry. Letters in the satchel bore the address E. K. Young, 223 East Eighteenth street, New York.

The man explained that he had tried to commit suicide by drowning in the river, but had found the water too cold. He had been in his pockets. He was taken to the City Hospital and is held for observation.

OREGON IS NOT PLEDGED TO W. D. HEARST

Delegate Holman Says Four of the State's Eight Votes Are for Parker or Some Other Conservative Man.

ONLY ONE DELEGATE
COMMITTED TO HEARST

Three Remaining Votes Will Be Cast for Any Candidate That New York and the South May Unite Upon.

Frederick D. Holman, a delegate to the national Democratic convention from Oregon, who reached St. Louis today, says his state has been improperly counted in the Hearst column in the tables of votes printed up to date.

"Oregon is not pledged to Hearst and not one of the delegates from my state is pledged to him," he said to the Post-Dispatch. "Only one man in the eight is considered likely to vote for Hearst, as he comes from a locality where the Hearst sentiment is strong."

"The other seven are not for Hearst. Four of them are old-fashioned Cleveland Democrats and will be for Parker or some other conservative man like him."

"The other three will support any candidate that New York and the South can unite on. They believe that such a candidate has the best chance of winning, and they are primarily anxious to see the Democratic party win this time."

Mr. Holman says Gov. Chamberlain of Oregon will arrive tonight. He is chairman of the delegation. The others are James Gleason, Portland; T. R. Sheridan, Roseburg; J. D. Matlock, Eugene; W. F. Butler, Baker City; C. E. Redfield, Hephner; C. N. Garland, Lebanon.

PLACES IN COLISEUM ALLOTTED TO DELEGATES.

The drawing which decided what sections the various delegations will occupy in the Coliseum when the Democratic national convention meets July 6 took place Thursday under the direction of Sergeant-at-Arms John I. Martin at the Jefferson Hotel.

Two boys, John I. Hayward, aged 12, and Leslie Hayward, aged 14, of 473 Labadie avenue, decided where the state standards will be placed. To them was left the task of fixing whether the New York delegation shall have a better opportunity of catching the chairman's eye than is given to the delegates from Hawaii; whether Bourke Cochran will have a better position from the building and had almost reached one of the delegates from Hawaii; whether Bourke Cochran will have a better position from the building and had almost reached one of the delegates from Hawaii; whether Bourke Cochran will have a better position from the building and had almost reached one of the delegates from Hawaii.

And these locations by the youngsters may be distinguished by an aggressive politician may succeed or fail according as he is favorably or unfavorably located in the convention.

CONTESTS ARE FILED FROM A NUMBER OF DISTRICTS.

Notices of contests among delegates to the Democratic national convention are beginning to reach Charles A. Walsh, secretary of the national Democratic committee at the headquarters at the Jefferson Hotel. Up to Thursday contests in 14 districts had been reported to him.

The districts are the First to Sixth in Pennsylvania, the Twelfth and Fourteenth in Ohio, the three in the District of Columbia, the Tenth Indiana, the Second Maine and the Twenty-third Illinois.

Rumors have reached the headquarters that the entire Illinois delegation is to be contested, but the only notice received so far is from the Twenty-third Illinois.

INDICTMENT DRAWN FOR "MAN HIGHER UP;" BUTLER INDICTED ON NEW CHARGE

COL. ED. BUTLER.

EX-GOV. STEPHENS SEIZED BY GUARD

Lighting Cigar as He Leaves World's Fair Building He Is "Called Down."

Ex-Gov. Lon V. Stephens was seized by a Jefferson Guard, who undertook to eject him from the Liberal Arts building at the World's Fair Wednesday afternoon, because he lighted a cigar just as he was about to go out and then stopped a minute to listen to an electrical music box.

In company with his brother-in-law, L. C. Nelson, Mr. Stephens had gone through the building and had almost reached one of the exits when he took a cigar from his pocket and lighted it. Just then Mr. Nelson called his attention to the music box and they turned aside to examine it.

A Jefferson Guard, apparently not over 19 years old, rushed up, and seizing Mr. Stephens by the arm, exclaimed, "Here you, get out of here. I saw you light that cigar."

He started as if to enforce his threat by leading Mr. Stephens towards the exit, but the latter ordered him to take his hands off and after administering a rebuke for the manner in which he was attempting to enforce his authority, went out of the building.

"I think some of the Jefferson Guards are using too much vigor in exercising their authority," said Mr. Stephens in relating the incident.

"I did not report this on my conduct, however. I may have been one of the young men from the country whom I recommended for an appointment."

BUTLER ACCUSED OF BRIBING A WITNESS

Butler Withdraws From Bonds of Kelly and Gutke, and the Latter Is Lodged in Jail—Kelly Stays at Home Writing His Confession in Full, and Is Arrested on Leaving.

Edward Butler went to court-room No. 9 at the Four Courts at 2:30 this afternoon and gave bond in the sum of $10,000, with John J. O'Brien as surety, to answer to an indictment on the charge of bribing a witness, the charge specified in the bench warrant which Circuit Attorney Folk requested Judge Taylor to issue.

A case was being tried when Butler entered the courtroom of Judge Taylor.

"Judge, I understand there's an indictment against me here," he said.

"The circuit attorney has requested me to issue a bench warrant against you," said Judge Taylor. "I understand the charge against you is bribing a witness."

"Well, I'd like to give a common law bond," said Butler.

The bond was furnished. Charles F. Kelly was placed in jail in jail at 2 o'clock.

Charles F. Kelly was taken into Judge McDonald's court at 2:15 this afternoon and in default of a bondsman to take the place of Ed Butler, who had surrendered him on his bond, he was ordered committed to jail. He was turned over to Jailer Dawson and locked up.

An indictment has been drawn in the office of Circuit Attorney Folk against the prominent broker, who has come to be known as "the man higher up" in the lighting bill bribery scandal, charging him with perjury, but it has not been voted on yet by the grand jury.

If an indictment shall be returned the charge of perjury will rest on the fact that he has stated under oath before a preceding grand jury that he knows nothing about bribery of members of the Municipal Assembly, whereas, according to the confession of Gutke, the broker gave him $20,000 in furtherance of a deal for the passage of the city lighting bill.

Butler's indictment is based on the confession of Kelly, who says Butler gave him $50,000 to silence him until after the statute of limitations would go into effect, $15,000 of the sum before his flight to Canada and Europe and $35,000 after his return.

It is believed that an indictment is about to be returned against a third person, a prominent politician.

BUILDER MEETS SUDDEN DEATH

Body of Man Whose Initials Are Supposed to Be C. W. F. Found on Floor.

The body of an unidentified white man, whose initials are supposed to be C. W. F., was found in an uncompleted building at Walton and Washington avenue Thursday morning, lying on the cinder floor. A hat believed to be his, in which were these initials, was found a block away at Olive street and Walton avenue. Death is believed to have been due to an epileptic fit.

The man was 5 feet 8 inches in height and weighed 125 pounds. His light brown hair was sprinkled with gray. The complexion was dark. He wore a gray flannel coat, dark striped trousers and striped shirt. In the pockets nothing was found.

The body was taken to the Morgue, where it was found that the initials C. W. F. were on the socks. From his clothing he is believed to be a plasterer.

The police at first thought the man had been killed, but on further investigation changed their theory.

SANTOS SAYS HE WILL SHOW HIS SINCERITY

Aeronaut Declares He Will Hasten
Back to America With Repaired Airship to Repel Charge That He Sought to Avoid Flight.

INDIGNANT AT REPORT OF
CHIEF OF JEFFERSON GUARD

Departing for Paris, He Will Have Repairs Made in Time for Participation in Races at the Exposition Next August.

M. Alberto Santos-Dumont is an indignant, busy and determined man today.
The accusation of Col. Kingsbury, as told exclusively in the Post-Dispatch Wednesday, that he cut his own airship balloon because he was afraid to fly in it has made him determined to get back to Paris as fast as he can, having mutilated envelope repaired and hurry back so he can sail around the heads of the accusing police and make them ridiculous in the eyes of the people.

M. Santos-Dumont said to the Post-Dispatch last night:
"Col. Kingsbury's theory that I cut my own balloon or had it cut is too ridiculous.
I deny it, of course, but I am too busy a man to make any public denial of it, for it is too ridiculous."

"I simply leave the matter to the intelligent for their own opinion."
"I know that neither Mr. Francis nor Mr.
Skiff believe the ridiculous charge. I know, too, that intelligent people everywhere do not believe it."

"I am going to make it even more ridiculous by hurrying over to Paris, having the balloon repaired and coming back here to compete in the big race."

"I will show them whether I am afraid to fly."

"As for the theory of Col. Kingsbury that I did not intend to fly, but sought a concession to exhibit my balloon, I will say that I did not come here to exhibit my balloon.
I came to fly. I am going to fly to Paris in it. Only yesterday Mr. Skiff asked me to exhibit the mutilated balloon on the Fourth of July and I refused."

"Don't talk to me about it. The incident is closed with me. It is too ridiculous, and I am too busy!"

Told moving the little Brazilian went to the customs office and arranged for the exportation of his silk balloon.

He is leaving the mechanical part of the airship out at the aerodrome, and the three engineers will remain with it.

"Why should my men cut my balloon?"
M. Santos-Dumont asks. "To show you how I trust them. I am going away, and I will leave them here to care for my property while I am gone. These men would not injure me. I have worked together a long time. Recently I gave them $100 each as a reward for faithful and intelligent service."

"Don't worry," said Santos.
"I'll turn out all right!"

M. Santos-Dumont had an appointment with custom house authorities at 3:30 yesterday afternoon at the aeronautica concourse and shortly after 4 o'clock he visited the shed, where the damaged airship is now ready for shipment to Paris. There was a little delay in getting the necessary customs papers, and express employees were not able to take away the case containing the silken envelope, but every assistance was given the aeronaut to expedite matters. F. Ferreira Ramos, Brazilian commissioner to the Exposition, was with him, and he offered to store the two remaining cases containing the airship chinery until he returns with the repaired balloon.

When a friend approached the famous aeronaut with a newspaper containing an account now before President Francis, the little Brazilian made a gesture of impudence and anger.

"They must say something dirty about me. Don't talk about it. They said the same sort of thing when my machine fell into the water at Monte Carlo. It is no business of theirs."

The three French engineers were waiting for their master most of the day and when he left the shed he turned to them and said in French:

"Do not worry. It will turn out all right, and the men answered with smiles.
When questioned they shrugged their shoulders."

When told that a St. Louis man had offered to repair the damaged M. Santos-Dumont said:

"Well, then he can sail in it. I won't."
He said he would not trust himself in any ship not repaired in France, where there is a regular hospital for airships.

He explained that the silken case is made in squares of 5 to 10 inches in breadth and that when a rent occurred in the center of such a square it was an easy matter to mend it. But when a cut severed the attaching, it weakens the whole surface and requires great skill and time to remedy the defect.

A young private detective, with an eye on the reward of $100 offered by the Exposition, shadowed Santos-Dumont yesterday. He did not receive much encouragement, but made a close examination of the case containing the silken balloon. He discovered traces of an attempt to cut and tear the outside canvas.

Old watchman "Thomas," who is employed by the building contractor, and who does not leave the shed day or night, says that Sunday night a stranger, speaking with a foreign accent and dark of complexion, came to him and told him that Santos-Dumont had sent him up to the shed to watch. Thomas would not let him in, nor would the Jefferson guard to whom he also applied. The stranger was well dressed.
Thomas says this man was not Morison, whom the police arrested and later released.

EACH VISITOR GETS GARNET

Alaska Trying to Give Away 15 Tons
at the Fair.

Fair visitors will not find diamonds, precious pearls or rare emeralds in the Alaskan building, but there is an exhibit-tion over here 15 tons of garnets. From the standpoint of weight this is the greatest display of precious stones shown at the Fair.
Garnets are looked upon as precious gems

In some parts of the earth, in Alaska, the stones are so plentiful that they are dirt cheap. As a special attraction for the Alaskan building, Gov. Brady secured a shipment of 15 tons for the Fair.

The hostesses of state buildings were entertained at the Alaskan building Thursday. Each guest was presented with a garnet. The Alaskan commission is now planning for a garnet day at their building. On this occasion every visitor will be presented with a clear cut garnet.
In the 15 tons of garnets there are stones sufficient for about 15,000 people, so the commission does not expect a famine to follow its one generous day.

FALLING SIGN INJURES WOMEN.

Mrs. S. C. Jones Has Leg Fractured
in Last Night's Windstorm.

Mrs. S. C. Jones of 2322 Walnut street and her guest, Mrs. Kate Lawson of Chicago, were victims of Wednesday night's windstorm. Mrs. Jones is at the City Hospital, with a fractured leg and numerous bruises; Mrs. Lawson is at Mrs. Jones' home, suffering from bruises, but not badly hurt.
The two women went to Union Station in the expectation of meeting Mrs. Lawson's husband. He did not arrive, and they started to walk back to Mrs. Jones' home just as the storm came up. At Twenty-third and Market streets a terrific gust of wind dislodged a candy-store sign and threw it against the two women. Both were knocked down and rendered unconscious for a few minutes. They were carried into the Terminal Hotel and revived and an ambulance called for Mrs. Jones.

SANDWICH, N. H., June 30.—Former evening and go to his summer home, 15 completing a special line to his home. It will be Mr. Cleveland's private wire. The disposal of the recent report that the for-

BANG! GOES TRUNK OF PHOTO SUPPLIES

Crowd at Union Station Alarmed by Explosion Due to Baggage Smasher's Violence.

With a noise of a volume between a train collision and a cannon's roar, photographic supplies which completely filled a trunk, exploded in Union Station Thursday, greatly frightening the crowd gathered there until the cause was ascertained, and it became known there was no damage further than the loss of the supplies.

The trunk belonged to H. L. Bernard, a Chicago photographer, who came to St. Louis to attend the national Democratic convention.

The trunk was being unloaded from the baggage car to a truck at the extreme end of the train sheds, and the moment it struck the track, the contents exploded with a loud report, so loud that many in the station thought there had been a train wreck at the end of the sheds.

Those who looked down the tracks to the right saw a great cloud of smoke rise toward the roof. There was no fire, and the crowd soon regained its composure.

Anti-Imperialists' Headquarters.

The Anti-Imperialist League, which is to hold a convention next week, has established its headquarters at the office of John P. Hermann, 1127 Chestnut street. Some of the speakers who have already reported, but the large and distinguished Massachusetts delegation will probably not be here till Monday.

BORAXOLOGY

The principle of the Boraxologist is, when you do anything always look for the best way. Just as there is a best way to darn socks or to make jelly, or to solve a mathematical problem, so there is a best way to do housework or wash things. Use Borax to wash dishes, to clean woodwork, to wash clothes—it doesn't matter what it is that is to be "washed," you can do it easier and quicker and better by adding a little Borax to the water. Borax has a power to cleanse that will astonish you. Imitations are worthless and injurious. Get pure BORAX.

The Secret of the Radium Dance

So many inquiries have been made concerning the radium dance at Kralffy's Louisiana Spectacle upon the Odeon stage that this explanation of it has been given the Post-Dispatch for the general information:

The costumes worn in the dance consist of silencers, balloons, jacket and clown's cap, the whole being known as the punchinello suit. The fabric composing it is of foreign manufacture. These garments are thoroughly saturated with a liquid made from a chemical powder invented by Prof. Giuseppe Balzano of the Royal Italian Academy of Science, Italy. This powder in its liquid form has the effect of absorbing light, which is brilliantly emitted again when the substance impregnated with it is exposed to artificial light. The costumes thus saturated are kept in a darkened room until ready for use. When the girls don them, a light powerful calcium light is turned upon them thus directed at least 10 minutes, and then on the darkened stage the figures become veritable storage batteries of light. The fact is accounted for that at no time can the faces of the dancers be seen, not being being saturated with the liquid, while the balance of their forms is brilliantly luminous.

"Girl From Dixie," one of the most delightful musical plays that has been seen in St. Louis this season, has proven that a play can remain in St. Louis and be a financial success for longer than a week. This is the fourth week at the Century Theater, and the audiences are of unusually large proportions, and there seems to be no lessening in the interest taken in this popular southern story. Charles Bowen, J. K. Scott, D. D. Don, Clifford Leigh, Charles K. French, Charles Shaffer, Harry Wiegand, Olga May, Essie Lyons, Elsie Baird and Genevieve Day are now considered real St. Louis favorites, and will be heartily received whenever they return.

The management of the Delmar Garden production, "Louisiana," is too modest by half in advertising the spectacular features of the production. Its friends are not so backward, and it is the opinion of many that the Delmar Garden show is the most elaborate stage piece ever seen on the American stage. St. Louis has a particular pride in making this assertion, for it has been thought heretofore that no big stage production could be made in St. Louis. Nothing ever brought here from New York or Chicago can compare to the Delmar Garden extravaganza. Its three main pictures—the wilderness of Louisiana, the Napoleonic court scene and the illustrious cascade picture—are remarkably beautiful.

The Police Relief Association week at the Highlands is as big a success as ever. For that week Col. Hopkins always presents his greatest card, and he has certainly found them in the Four Madcaps and the Holliday story, and in that capital impersonator Julian Rose. Rose presents a stage Hebrew that is totally unlike any other ever seen in St. Louis. He does artistic work both in makeup and the stories which he sings in a far-carrying sort of voice which is, however, not harsh, but pleasant to listen to. It can be said with truth and to any of the Hebrew impersonators that Rose stands in a class of his own. Jack Gardner is a good black-face entertainer, and he has missed this week's program will have failed to see the best show of the season so far. Next week's program is the headline at the Highlands. The other numbers are the Elmore Sisters, Smith and Fuller, Herr Sanna, Carron and Herbert and Eddie Leslie.

The Nilsson Statuary Group Exhibit, at Grand and Laclede avenues, appeals to lovers of art and church people, because it combines the highest religious spirit with art in modeling, grouping and illuminating 16 scenes from the life of Christ in Palestine. The 16 groups represent the great moments in the Bible history from the nativity to the resurrection. Carl Johan Nilsson, the Swedish artist, who modeled the figures and planned the groups, has also posed them in the pretty oriental temple in which they are located.

Suburban Garden is offering the banner show of the season this week. Josephine Gassman and her three pickaninies give one of the most entertaining acts in vaudeville. Martinelli and Rossi pull a bicycle apart and play duets on the various sections. Their musical specialties are really surprising. Sidonia is a feisty black wire feature is amusing. Not the least entertaining feature is the kinetograph, which in moving pictures tells a vivid story of a train robbery.

Next week's bill will be up to the standard, comprising Colby and Way in a novelty sketch, Otto Young and brother, hoop rollers; the three Waleys, acrobats; Naomi Edwards, lady acrobat; and Miss Harlan Langdon, a comedy singer. The kinetograph will show new pictures.

Manager Smith of the "Quincy Adams Sawyer" company at the Crawford theater, says it seems but a week to him and his company since opening in St. Louis May 8, two months ago. The business has been so large and the surroundings so pleasant without travel, that the time has seemed like a visit to the World's Fair.

The teachers' convention assembled at the right time and place, and the members are now visiting "Quincy Adams Sawyer" in large numbers on the reduced scale of prices offered them. The children and families are mulling the most of the Wednesday and Saturday matinees this week.

The Australian Quartette is making good this week at West End Heights, and its singing of selections from popular operas is making a big hit. The balance of the turns are also meeting with favor and pleasing the big audiences. Next week there will be another strong list of attractions. Among them are the Gold Dust Twins, song and dance artists; Castellat and Hall, comedy sketch and travesty artists; Marie, contralto singer; Mildred Grover, refined vocalist; Bickel and Watson, German comedians; and Marcus and Castello, knockabout comedians. Performances take place both afternoon and evening.

The Mannon Park bill of vaudeville this week is very pleasing, being headed by Will H. Fox, in his comedy piano creation, "Paddywhisk." His act is better than ever, if that were possible. Others worth mentioning on the bill are Montomery and Ivora, musical comedians; Miller and Kresko, singers and dancers; and Carolyn Young, whistler. The management announces for next week, starting with Sunday's matinee, Morrisey and Rich, comedians; Leo and Chapman, comedy acrobatic skit; the Wilson Brothers, German comedians and warblers; the Rexon, acrobats and fancy skaters and hoop rollers; and Francis McNulty, singing and dancing comedienne.

California Secretary Resigns.

E. B. Willis has tendered his resignation as secretary and as a member of the California state commission to the Fair, to take effect immediately. Mr. Willis gave as his reason for the resignation that the secretary duties required too much work for the compensation of $100 per month. It is said, however, that the social misunderstanding between Mr. Willis and the wife of Commissioner Frank Higgins is responsible for the withdrawal of Mr. Willis.

Will Entertain Boys.

There will be a large gathering of boys at Welfare Hall, Eleventh and Locust streets, Thursday night to hear the Boys' Band of South St. Louis under the direction of Prof. Schick, and to witness the tumbling, sparring and general athletic exercises. The boys are getting ready to take part in the exercises at the Fair on July 5—American Boy Day—and all young people who expect to attend the Festival Hall program that day are invited to register and get a badge from the committee.

Council Meets Semi-Monthly.

The Industrial Labor Council, formed June 11 and affiliated with the A. F. of L., composed of delegates from the several locals in St. Louis and vicinity, will hold meetings at Seventeenth and Wash streets the second and fourth Sundays of each month. The picnic to be held July 10 by the United Shoe Workers for the benefit of the Colorado miners will be held by the council.

Buy a Tailor-Made Suit During This Sale

The Cost Will Be 1/2 to 1/3 of the Usual Price.

WE sprung quite a sensation on the St. Louis mercantile world when we announced that we were going to sell our entire stock of Tailor-Made Suits at one-half, one-third and one-fourth their actual value. It was hard for many to believe that just because we happened to have a little over a thousand Spring and Summer Wool Suits on hand that we were going to sacrifice them in this fashion, but those who came to investigate found it to be a stern reality.

WOMEN who attended this sale will attest that never have such suit values been given. We claim it to be the most extraordinary event of its kind. Just imagine, selling suits that we sold as high as $15.00 for $5.00, those that we sold as high as $25.00 for $7.50, and so on up to the $45.00 suits for $15.00.

WHILE the loss we are taking on these suits may seem amazing, we consider it good merchandising, as we convert the stock into ready cash, secure a valuable advertisement, and adhere to our method of selling goods in their season, carrying nothing over.

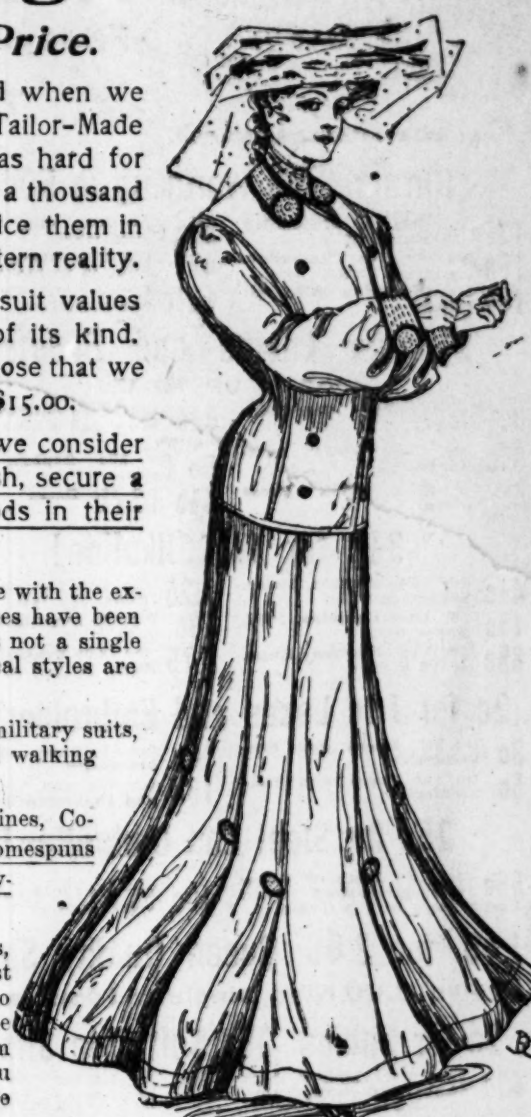

WE include in this offering every woman's and miss's suit we have in the house with the exception of the silk suits, and do not for a moment imagine because the prices have been cut so deep that these suits are in any way undesirable, on the contrary, there is not a single garment but what was bought for this spring's business—hundreds of the identical styles are being worn today by women of fashion.

THE STYLES are various blouse effects, Etons, straight-coat suits, reefer suits, military suits, corset-fitting suits, long-coat suits, cape suits and tailored suits in dress and walking lengths.

THE MATERIALS are English Cheviots, Broadclothes, Serges, Mohairs, Etamines, Covert Cloth, French Voiles, Venetians, Fancy Mixtures, Men's Suitings and Homespins—all colors among them; the majority are black, blue and brown; also several shades of gray in various fancy mixtures in light and dark shades.

COATS are variously trimmed with self pleats, piping, silk straps, buttons, ornaments, self straps, etc., others plain tailored—sleeves in the newest pouch styles; skirts all this season's pleated and kilted effects, trimmed to match jacket—coats are either silk or satin lined—several hundred of the garments are made entirely over taffeta silk—there are plenty of all sizes from a miss of 14 to a stout woman requiring 49 bust measure. As we told you above, this sale embraces our entire stock of high-class suits—not a single garment is reserved.

Tailor-Made Suits $5 Worth to $15.00, Tailor-Made Suits $7.50 Worth to $25.00, Tailor-Made Suits $10 Worth to $35.00, Tailor-Made Suits $15 Worth to $45.00, $15

SUSIE DIED TRYING TO BECOME A AUTO

Susie Is a Horse That Had Long Envied the Big Skiddoodle Wagons.

ATE A BIG STEEL SPRING

Veterinary Surgeon Called in by Jacob Smith Discovered the Mechanism.

The overbearing ambition of Jacob Smith's faithful old bay mare, Susie, to become an automobile was the unhappy cause of her sad death Wednesday.

Jacob Smith lives at West Alton. Susie's home was in a barn on the farm. For a long while she was content to be a plain horse, leading the farmer's plow and hauling his vegetables to market. She was happy and contented.

But on one occasion she came with a load of truck to St. Louis. While dreamily drugging the wagon down Broadway she was startled and shocked by the sound and sight of a red skiddoodle wagon, with honking horn and sputtering motor, and with two immense glass eyes staring at her from each side of its ugly head.

Susie had a terrific fright. She thought there never was a surer sign of evil come to earth, and she shied and snorted over two sides of a red skiddoodle wagon, with honking horn and sputtering motor, and
with two immense glass eyes staring at
her from each side of its ugly head.

Jacob Smith's whip brought her to her senses, but she was so weak and afraid that she could hardly travel. Then came another shock.
"Dad blast the lazy mare," Jacob Smith's voice was saying, "why don't she get up.
If I only had one of those automobiles now, my truck wouldn't spoil between the time I gathered it and the time I got it to market."

Susie was indignant. She switched her tail, lifted her head and struck up a lively trot. The idea of her master wanting one of those obnoxious, snorting, sputtering, bouncing, glass-eyed things, when he had good, faithful horses!

Hanked After Enlightenment.

But the seed was planted, and soon Susie began to grow a wondering desire to know what there was in an automobile to make honest farmers wish for one.
The opportunity presented itself on subsequent visits to St. Louis, when Susie managed to muster up enough courage to poke her nose around one of the automobiles which she met. She didn't like it; it wasn't so much as a horse to go with the master more unreasonably than ever in wanting one of them.

But yet—Susie couldn't get over the idea that she would like to be one. It didn't seem much—just some reindeer, in a way, but she thought it was a horse.
One day about a month ago Susie's eye caught the twist and curve of a spiral steel spring hanging above her head as she reached up for a mouthful of hay. There she thought, was her chance. If she could only get that spring inside of her, she would be in a fair way to transform herself into an automobile. So she reached up, clipped the spring from its nail, and swallowed it. It was a long spring—11 inches, and 1/2 inches in diameter; it ought to help some.

But Susie was disappointed; it didn't help a bit. Instead, it hurt. She thought there was something missing. She sought in vain for it. She tried to find a reason for it. She tried to find a reason for it.
She tried to find a reason for it.

Then Susie grew sad and unhappy. She would rather be a spring horse, but it was too late. She whinnied pitifully and regretfully to her master, who was called to her by the sound of her whinny.

A veterinary surgeon was called to perform an autopsy on Susie to discover the cause of her death. He found the spring in her abdominal cavity.

But his professional science did not reveal to him the story of Susie's overleap-ing ambition to become an automobile.

Falls Into Elevator Shaft.

Theodore Guntermann, living at 1428 Clinton street, was seriously injured Friday morning by falling into an elevator shaft at the Georgia-Sumner Furniture Co.'s store, 618 Washington avenue, where he was employed. He walked into the shaft, the gate of which was left open, on the first floor and fell into the basement.
He is at the City Hospital with a probable fracture of the skull and severe contusions.

Coffee and Cucumbers.

It is a matter of history that on the morning before one of the decisive battles of the Civil War, General Grant's breakfast consisted of a cucumber and a cup of black coffee. The dread disease, which finally overcame him in the vigor of his manhood, was the direct result of his repeated disregard of the laws of health.
Such a fate would be unlikely to the keen, active-minded men of today, who make Pillsbury's vices their principal article of

LA FOLLETTE MEN TO FIGHT IN COUNTIES

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 30.—The La Follette men in each of the 72 counties in the state are preparing to nominate independent tickets to oppose the "Stalwarts" as well as the Democratic organization in the fall election. In every county it is the intention to appeal to the courts to give the La Follette men the right to place their ticket under the regular party heading. Milwaukee county will act first and will be followed by the other counties. In Milwaukee county the party machinery is controlled by the La Follette men, but the governor's adherents will carry the fight to the lowest office on the ticket. In revenge for the decision against the governor for the decision against the governor.

While even this movement will not endanger the Republican candidates in a few counties, it will, where the Republican factions are nearly equally divided, insure the election of Democrats. This will probably be the result in the majority of counties.

AKINS' AMBITION BLOCKED PLAN TO DEFEAT FOLK

Jealous Because Democratic-Republican Combine to Control State Was Made Without His Knowledge, He Refused to Give Up National Committeemanship.

WALBRIDGE HAD CONSENTED TO BE ELECTED GOVERNOR

Plan Was Unfolded at Chicago and Dickey Withdrew in Favor of Wells Blodgett, After George Gould's Interest Was Proven.

A few weeks ago a number of prominent Democrats in St. Louis held a series of meetings and determined to effect a secret arrangement with Missouri Republicans for turning the Missouri governorship over to the Republican party. The plan contemplated reciprocity. The Democrats in the combine were to deliver to the opposition enough Democratic votes in St. Louis, St. Joseph, Sedalia and Kansas City to insure the defeat of Folk for governor, and the Republicans in the combine were to deliver enough Republican votes in various parts of the state to elect Cook, Allen and possibly an attorney-general on the Democratic state ticket, together with a circuit attorney in St. Louis.

The Democrats in the combine were in a position to deliver the goods, because the chief organizer represented political and in legislative lobbies and in the courts the great railroad organizations of the state, with all of their men and all of their money, because the second man in the combine was a wealthy broker with a powerful Democratic partner who has been all powerful in the municipal assembly, because the third man in the combine was very strong in the city of St. Louis, because the city (the Jefferson Club) and was soon, if things developed as scheduled, to be a police commissioner.

The Republicans to be brought into the combine were in a position to deliver the goods, because they controlled the federal offices of the State of Missouri and the state and city Republican committees.

Walbridge Selected as Candidate.

When the plan had been well framed by the Democratic part of the organization, the Republicans were called in, and a number of joint conferences occurred. Various candidates for the governorship were suggested, and it was finally agreed that ex-Mayor C. P. Walbridge was the most available and desirable man to substitute for Mr. Folk at the mansion. A committee saw Mayor Walbridge, who was then engaged in his vice-presidential campaign, and secured his reluctant assent to the program, with the stipulation that nothing as to his gubernatorial candidacy must be allowed to transpire until after the national Republican convention in Chicago. To make the best possible showing there on his vice-presidential vote, and a double candidacy would not condone that result.

As a part of the plan of campaign, the railroad emissary stipulated that the Republicans must allow him, a Democrat, to name their national committeeman from Missouri, because, he said, the turning over of a great state like Missouri would require a very extraordinary man. In which the national Republican organization must join with influence and with money. To make a proper impression on the national committee, and to insure its confidence that the undertaking was not in the hands of triflers, Missouri's member must be a man of irreproachable character, intellectual strength and high social standing. The ideal man for the place was Col. Wells H. Blodgett, of illustrious fame as a soldier, of high standing at the bar and for a generation the main reliance of the Gould roads in St. Louis in all matters affecting either policy or law.

The Republicans in the combine accepted this stipulation with some misgivings, first because they recognized that the men of their party had already agreed on Mr. Akins for national committeeman, and, next because they remembered that in all the years since the long-headed man's ascent of the Gould system had enforced a strict rule against any of its important officers inviting the hostility of one party by becoming the candidate of another. Still, if it could be done they were assured it would be done, and the plan of the combine could thus be made a machine for the declared use of the Republican party, the Republicans recognized that they would be the gainers while risking nothing.

Surprise for Akins and Dyer.

Thus it was arranged, but with the understanding that the Akins people, and the department, comparing Dyer and Norton, should not be apprised of the plan until it could be sprung and put through with a rush in the Missouri delegation at Chicago or later. About that time George Gould visited President Roosevelt at Washington, and the Missouri situation was fully discussed, although it is not at all certain that the full plans were revealed to the President. On the night when the Missouri delegation met for organization in Chicago, Mr. Gould, having evidently satisfied himself that the plan was a feasible one, wired to L. P. Parker, vice-president of the Frisco railroad, who was member of the delegation, that he (Gould) would consent to Col. Blodgett's acceptance of the position of Republican national committeeman if the delegation saw fit to appoint him. The psychological effect of this plan for capturing Missouri through the connivance of certain Democratic leaders was added to the great surprise of a majority of the delegation. Akins' representatives resented that they had not been trusted to help formulate it, but the promises were so brilliant and alluring that they could not consistently refuse to accept the state for which their party has hungered more than thirty years.

How Akins Blocked Deal.

They assented, therefore, to the appointment of a committee to wait on Mr. Akins and Mr. Dickey and ask them both to withdraw in favor of Col. Blodgett. The committee, with Mr. Parker as chairman, found Dickey willing, but Akins unwilling and obstinate. Under Akins' advice he declined to withdraw. Later it looked as though if Chas. Nagel would withdraw, but even this compromise failed, and Mr. Akins, whom the railroad men do not regard as much concerned (politically), was elected.

Only this little incident prevented the combine plan from being put through, framed, as it had been, resulting from the ship, but the railroad men and the Democratic faction in the combine are still bent on carrying out the scheme. There is more of the story to come. Sam Cook, whom the railroads and especially interested in retaining in the position of secretary of state, was present at one of the conferences of the Democratic leaders who were arranging for the defeat of their party.

Mr. Cook being charged with it, admitted that he did attend a conference by invitation, but he declared most strenuously that he attended only one, and that he positively declined to have anything to do with the sell-out of any part of the ticket. It is very apparent that the railroad lobbyist, the promoter of the combine, the lobbyist and the king of the municipal assembly lobby, have been far less discreet than heretofore in their declaration of the prospect of Folk for governor, and that all of the facts must now come out in Missouri, without any compensatory advantage.

BOOKER WASHINGTON TALKS TO EDUCATORS

man family, they themselves will be strengthened and broadened and made after the fashion of the teacher of teachers.

Attendance Now 50,000.

The attendance at the session Thursday was the record breaker for the association. Many more parties of teachers arrived in the city Wednesday and Wednesday night, increasing the attendance to over 50,000. There was a desire of a large number of teachers to hear the negro speaker, many of whom had never before had the opportunity. Mr. Washington's address dealt principally with the conditions encountered in teaching the Southern negro. He also took up a consideration of the conditions immediately following the war, comparing them with the conditions of today, claiming a great advancement in the intellectual standing of the negro.

The opening address was by J. J. Shepard, principal of the High School of Commerce of New York City. His subject was "The New Departure in Secondary Education." M. Georges Lamy, a professor of Sorbonne, France, handled the subject "Elementary Education in France."

"Education in Porto Rico" was the subject of a talk by Samuel N. Lindsay, commissioner of education for Porto Rico. The afternoon's session includes a memorial session of the National Council and discussions in the different departments. A general session will be held at 4:45 o'clock.

The National Council has refused the request for the appointment of a commission and the appropriation of $20,000 for the introduction of phonetic spelling into the country. The council made slight concession to the phonetic spelling advocates by the appointment of a committee to investigate the plan proposed, and if it should not be found feasible to report at the next annual meeting the result of its investigations. This settles the phonetic spelling matter for the present year, unless the board of directors, before which the matter will be taken, should rescind the action of the council. This is considered entirely improbable.

Co-education is causing considerable interest among the delegates to the association, addresses in its favor being made by President Angell of the University of Michigan and by President Jesse of the University of Missouri. However, the opponents are vigorous, and G. Stanley Hall, president of the Clark University, Worcester, Mass., was loudly applauded at Wednesday's session when he declared co-education is responsible for race suicide.

Reception to Kindergartners.

The kindergarten teachers attending the National Educational Association now in the city will be the guests of the St. Louis kindergarten teachers at a reception in the Missouri building at 5 o'clock Thursday evening. Over 500 invitations have been issued to the officers of the National Educational Association, the principals of the different schools, the representatives of foreign countries and all others interested in educational affairs, besides the visiting kindergartners.

Nominating Committee.

The selection of the nominating committee for officers of the National Educational Association, reported to the convention and placed before that body for a vote Thursday, are: President, W. H. Maxwell, New York; vice-president, John H. Cook, Illinois; secretary, George B. Cook, Arkansas; J. N. Sturder, Indiana; J. F. H. Frederick, Ohio; Miss Alice E. Knapp, Indian Territory; E. H. DELAYED WEDDING WHILE HE PAID FEE

R. A. Fraser Took No Chances in Belleville and Rectified Mistake of County Clerk.

Should a man marry when his marriage license has not been paid for? This is the question Robert A. Fraser of St. Louis asked himself Wednesday afternoon when on the verge of wedding Mrs. Laura Gibbons, also of St. Louis. Rev. Gardner of the Presbyterian church of Belleville was asking a few preliminary questions before commencing the ceremony when the groom suddenly remembered that he had forgotten to pay for the license. He thought over the matter for a long time. It appeared to him that the proper thing to do would be to return to the courthouse immediately and pay the required dollar. The bride told him to wait until after the ceremony had been performed. The preacher advised him likewise, but Fraser was determined, and back to the courthouse he went. To Deputy County Clerk Stookey, of whom he had obtained the license, he paid the dollar, and with an exultant confidence returned and the nuptial knot was tied.

OLD WOUND WAS FRIEND'S TARGET

Frederick Smith, Survivor of Philippine Ambush, Wounded Twice in Same Spot.

Frederick Smith, a veteran of the Philippine war, is at the City Hospital with a bullet wound in his right chest, and Todd Merryman is a prisoner charged with inflicting the wound, as a result of a quarrel between the two men as to which could whip the other. Smith's wound is almost in the spot where a Negro bullet penetrated in May, 1900. At that time Smith, with 39 others of the Forty-fifth United States regiment, were surrounded near Luzon, on the island of Luzon, by 600 Negroes, whom they sought to pacify, and all but four of the soldiers were killed. Smith was one of those who lived, although wounded. Smith and Merryman occupied rooms over a saloon at Fountain and Bayard avenues, and have quarreled frequently. Wednesday night the quarrel was resumed as they started up the stairway from the back yard, and each declared he could whip the other. They agreed to adjourn into Fountain avenue to settle the question. Merryman was first to get in the street and Smith charges that as he came out of the gate Merryman fired three shots at him. One bullet entered his chest. The other two bullets were wild. The hospital physicians say Smith's wound is dangerous none because of the probability of complications due partly to the old wound than to its own immediate effects.

IGORROTES AGREE WITH GEN. SHERMAN

War Is Something Unspeaking, They Conclude After Seeing Boer Exhibition.

LOSE APPETITE FOR DOG

Skins Held in Place by Strings, or They Would Have Vacated Them.

The Igorrotes were out in society last night. Gov. T. K. Hunt took 90 of them over to the Boer war. He stationed them in the grandstand, about 40 yards back of the firing line, and the dog-eaters won't have their appetites with them again before Saturday.

The battle of Colenso almost frightened the Igorrotes out of their skins. In fact, they would have vacated their skins had they not been tied on with a few strings. A box had been reserved for Gov. Hunt, but the firing so excited his charges that he was afraid to leave them. He remained in the seats with them throughout the performance.

The Igorrotes are of excitable temperament. Firing excited them, and even thunder makes them dance around and step aside. Once during the performance last night they were so affected by the realism of the battle that they were carried away for a moment and shouted their own terrible war cry of "Death to the tailors!"

The Igorrotes scarcely knew the report of a gun before the American army invaded the Philippines. They fought with spears and the thunder of cannon was something absolutely new to them when Gov. Hunt brought them out of their mountain homes on the uneven floor of Luzon. Strange as it may seem, they had not even seen the ocean when they embarked on it for the long journey to St. Louis.

INDICTMENT "MAN"

Ed Butler, who signs himself "Jim," on the charge of compounding a felony. This person has not heretofore appeared in connection with the lighting scandal. The probable indictment will rest on the statement of Kelley that this person gave him $800 while he was in Canada to influence him to stay away longer than was at first thought necessary.

Ed Butler has surrendered Chas. F. Kelly and Chas. A. Gutke, former members of the House of Delegates, and members of the boodle combine, on their bonds. Gutke was arrested Thursday morning after an all-night vigil of deputy sheriffs, and for lack of another bondsman to take the place of Butler was committed to jail. Later he was released on a new bond of $15,000. Kelley spent last night and this morning at his home writing his full confession for the circuit attorney's office, and was arrested on leaving his home.

Kelly was arrested at Twenty-third and Howard streets at 12:30 o'clock by city detectives as he was on his way to the Four Courts to give himself up.

It is understood that Ed Butler will surrender all the men indicted on bribery charges for whom he is bondsman, but orders for their arrest have not been issued yet.

HEAR IS COMPLETE STORY OF EVENTS.

Here is the first complete story of the city lighting boodle deal, the negotiations which preceded the payment of bribe money, the circumstances of the flight of Charles F. Kelly, what he received for leaving the country and from whom and the circumstances which led up to the confessions of Chas. F. Kelly and Chas. A. Gutke, as related in the confessions of Kelly and Gutke, made Tuesday and Wednesday.

On the evidence afforded by these confessions an indictment has been voted charging Ed Butler with compounding a felony, and an indictment has been drawn, but not yet voted upon by the grand jury, charging the prominent broker, who has come to be known as the city lighting scandal as "the man higher up," with perjury, because he testified under oath that he knew nothing of the bribery.

When the city lighting bill was pending in the Municipal Assembly, Charles F. Kelly, member of the House, and Charles K. Katz and Charles E. Carroll, members of the Council, went to the office of the man higher up. Ed Butler was there. The boodle combine was there offered $47,500 to pass the measure. The man higher up gave Gutke $20,000. If the other members of the combine accepted the terms, the other $27,500 was to be handed to Charles F. Kelly on the floor of the House when the bill was passed.

The combine wanted $75,000. The $20,000 was sent back to the man higher up. The gang stood out for $75,000, but finding that $27,500 was all they could get agreed to accept that.

They passed the bill. Kelly received the $20,000 from Butler at his Tenth street office and took it to the home of Julius Lehmann on North Twenty-third street, where it was "cut up" at the famous "birthday party" on the night of Nov. 28, 1902.

THREE GIFTS TO KELLY. When the bribery investigation assumed such an aspect that the bribe givers were in danger, it became important that Kelly should be sent away and kept out of the way until the statute of limitations would render the bribe immune to indictment.

Ed Butler gave Kelly $15,000 to leave the country. Most of this money was turned over to Kelly's wife, after which Kelly disappeared. He adopted the name of Hogan and went first to Canada. He carried on correspondence while there with Kelly's wife, and received a prominent politician who is very close to "Col. Butler," and was signed "Jim" when he went to Canada to tell Kelly that there had been a mistake in the statute of limitations would bar prosecution of the men who paid the $47,500, and informed him that he would have to remain away until after Nov. 28, 1902.

Eighteen hundred dollars were given by him to Kelly. That money Kelly sent to Europe and traveled on the continent, remaining until after the date mentioned. After his return Kelly went to see Butler. He told Butler that little of the $15,000 remained, that his flight had ruined him, that the only thing he had to make a living with was his business reputation, and that he was not very much, and said he ought to have more money.

The indictment against Butler charges that, in paying Kelly $60,000, he was guilty of compounding a felony.

An indictment charging the same crime cannot be returned against the man higher up, because there is no evidence to connect him with the $60,000 which was paid. The indictment which has been drawn against him charges him with perjury. It rests on the allegation that within the past two years he has stated under oath before the grand jury that he knows nothing of any bribery of members of the Municipal Assembly, whereas, according to the confessions of Gutke and Kelly he knew all about the $75,000 transaction.

NOT CHARGE BRIBERY. Butler cannot be indicted for bribery, because he has been indicted on that charge. He was acquitted. He was tried at the November, 1903. At that trial nobody testified to having actually seen the money pass from the hands of Butler to those of Kelly. But having been placed in jeopardy once he cannot be again tried on the same charge.

The man higher up cannot be indicted for bribery, because he is protected by the statute of limitations. Butler has been indicted on the charge of compounding a felony, and the statute of limitations is running against him. The Supreme Court reversed the case on technicality and the Supreme Court affirmed the conviction of Kelly and Chas. A. Gutke. The Supreme Court affirmed the conviction of Kelly and Chas. A. Gutke. The Supreme Court affirmed the conviction of Kelly and Chas. A. Gutke.

FOR HIGHER UP

had been wavering for some time. He had been disposed to plead guilty, go to the penitentiary, get through with his sentence as soon as he could and come back to St. Louis and rehabilitate himself. He was kept in line until the decisions in the Lehmann and Hartmann cases were announced. After that his determination to plead guilty could not be shaken. His plea of guilty stumped Gutke and Kelly, and it was the only question which should have been decided by the grand jury. Thomas F. Rowe, the attorney employed by Butler to defend the men, withdrew.

BUTLER'S SUDDEN WITHDRAWAL FROM BONDS SENT HIS ACCUSERS TO JAIL

"Col." Ed Butler, who has been the counselor, bondsman and stout friend to the boodlers from the beginning of the exposure, denying none of them and standing by them hip, shoulder and fortune, suddenly turned upon Kelly and Gutke last night and hurried to the home of Sheriff Dickman to order their arrest.

"I withdrew from the bonds of Kelly and Gutke. Arrest them at once," said the Colonel.

It was the first time he had turned upon any of the members of the ring. Always he has stood firm for them, and he has let them know that, come what would, they could "depend upon the Colonel."

Butler was the principal bondsman of Kelly and Gutke, having subscribed $15,000 upon each of their bonds.

The order to arrest Kelly and Gutke caused more of a flurry and more action upon the part of the sheriff and his force than has been exhibited about the shrewdly office in a long time.

NEIGHBORS EXCITED.

The vigil of the two plain clothes men excited the curiosity and apprehensions of the neighborhood. A crowd gathered. People said the two men were officers after Gutke. Others suggested that they were assassins bent upon carrying out the punishment of the black oath which Gutke had taken when he entered the boodle combine, and which he had violated when he confessed. Still others thought the men were guards retained by Gutke to protect him from assassins.

QUEUE CAUGHT, ALSO AH LING

Celestial Fan-Tan Player Cries His Capture by Gambling Squad to Hirsute Growth.

As the result of a raid Thursday morning on a fan-tan game one Chinaman was arrested. He was a Hirsute Growth. He was a fan-tan player. He was a fan-tan player. He was a fan-tan player.

There was no response to this, and the deputies kept up their vigil until daylight. At 7 o'clock Gutke came out of the house to care for his flowers, and he was arrested in his flower garden by Deputy Charles Horan.

Gutke was taken to the Four Courts and turned over to Judge McDonald, who had him locked up. An hour later Gottlieb Eyermann, who was one of the original bondsman, appeared at the Four Courts and supplied the surety for $15,000 which Butler had withdrawn. Gutke was released. The sum of his bond is $25,000, $10,000 of which was originally supplied by Charles Eyermann.

Butler appeared at the Four Courts at 9 o'clock this morning. Asked by the Post-Dispatch why he had surrendered Kelly and Gutke upon their bonds, the colonel replied:

"People seem to think my money grows on trees. It does not. I didn't want to take any more chances with these men. It is a business proposition with me. He would not say that he was withdrawing from their bonds and had ordered their arrest because their confessions had ter-

PARKERS CAUSE NO LONGER IN HANDS OF HILL

His Elision Likely to Bring to the Support of the Chief Judge the Strength of Gorman, Who Likes Him Personally.

IT IS EXPECTED ALSO TO CONCILIATE MURPHY

August Belmont, Ignored by Parker Managers, Is Said to Feel Hurt, as He Aspired to Be a Democratic Hanna.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 30.—In its news columns today the World says:

"Since ex-Senator David B. Hill's last visit to New York the management of the Parker campaign has gone out of his hands. It will be recalled that at the state convention Mr. Hill was everything and that the only way that ex-Lieutenant-Governor William Sheehan succeeded in having the platform partly modified and some changes made in the program was by argument and pressure upon Mr. Hill, in which Mr. Sheehan was enforced and supported by Judge Parker. However, neither the platform nor the general conduct of the state convention was as Judge Parker and Mr. Sheehan would have had it had they been as free and untrammelled in their control and management of it as they propose to be at the St. Louis convention.

"Senator Gorman's representations have had considerable to do with the side-tracking of Mr. Hill, although it can hardly be said that Mr. Hill is ever side-tracked, for it is impossible to efface him. Suggestions and requests glide off his imperturbable political surface. Senator Gorman dislikes Mr. Hill and says that Mr. Hill is a political hoodoo.

"On the other hand he likes Mr. Sheehan personally and is favorably disposed toward Judge Parker, with whom he came in contact 20 years ago when Judge Parker was a young man and beginning in state politics.

"If Senator Gorman can feel assured of the elision of Mr. Hill from the prominent part in the Parker management which he has taken, Senator Gorman will be found at St. Louis among Judge Parker's warmest supporters.

"Another bit of current politics is that August Belmont feels hurt at the way he has been treated. He thought that he could take the part in Democratic politics which his father filled over thirty years ago; indeed, he was even more ambitious and saw looming before him the possibilities of a Democratic Hanna. Since the election, his connection with the politics brought, his banking house has been a mecca for a certain kind of politicians, who have led him to explain that some seem to think that I have been elected paymaster of the United States.

"Nobody in the management of Judge Parker's campaign has taken any steps to prevent callers going to see Mr. Belmont; but on the other hand, Mr. Belmont has not been consulted about the campaign. He was especially hurt because his first knowledge that he was not to be one of the delegates at large came to him through a newspaper man, and when he went to Mr. Hill to inquire into the authenticity of the report he was surprised at Mr. Hill's calmly informing him of its correctness. Mr. August Belmont is not accustomed to being treated in this manner, and he has complained to his friends of what he chooses to feel was a lack of courteous consideration on the part of Mr. Hill.

POST-DISPATCH'S EDITORIAL PAGE AND DAILY

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Founded by JOSEPH PULITZER. Published by THE PULITZER PUBLISHING CO., 210-212 N. Broadway.

The Filipino pants for liberty.
Indiana is perhaps the mother of vice-presidents.
The boodle confessions ought to make thousands of independent voters in both parties.
Col. Pitcher of the army, who has jilted six girls, must have been a graceful pupil of Capt. Jinks.

There were last year more than 400 deaths from Fourth of July tetanus. Will the record be kept down to these figures this year?

It is a felony to defeat the prosecution of a felony by inducing witnesses to abscond. And all felonies look alike to honest prosecuting officers and unprejudiced juries.

THE CHANGED ROOSEVELT.

In its comparison of Roosevelt as he was with Roosevelt as he is, the New York World found that political ambition had wrought many and great changes in the man. Beginning his career as an impulsive, aggressive and courageous reformer, he defied opposition and gloried in making enemies. He persisted in his good impulses. He adhered through thick and thin to his convictions, regardless of the enemies he made.

But with his rapid rise to power and with the opening of larger opportunity in the field of politics, a subtle but decided change took place in his thought and conduct.

As a civil service reformer, he compelled the leaders of his own party to enforce the civil service law. As President he disregarded the civil service rules of his own making. In the Anna Dreyer case he permitted powerful politicians to inflict a great wrong upon a woman in the government service and turn the civil service law into a farce.

As governor of New York he earned the hostility of tax-dodging corporations by signing the franchise tax measure, but subsequently compromised by having it amended in their interest.

As assistant secretary of the navy he thrust aside all regard of persons and conventions to prepare the navy for war. But as President he humiliated a naval officer who had gained a great victory, in order to play to the gallery, and demoralized the army to promote a personal friend over the heads of able and experienced veterans.

That he is a man of reckless impulses it is not now the worst thing that can be said of him; he compromises with his best impulses. Perhaps the best illustration of the new Roosevelt is found in his conduct towards the trusts and the tariff-sheltered monopolies. His first vigorous and inspiring utterance against the law-breaking trusts was quickly modified to a carefully-worded statement that only the bad trusts should be punished.

When he ordered Attorney-General Knox to proceed against the Northern Securities Co., the country was thrilled with the hope that at last we had a President who would thoroughly enforce the anti-trust law. But after that admirable stroke, the administration ceased all activity in the enforcement of the law. With a supreme court decision which supplied a basis for the most aggressive and successful attack on illegal combinations in restraint of trade, not a finger was lifted against them. On the contrary, Mr. Roosevelt made haste to demonstrate to the trust magnates who had threatened him with their displeasure, that they had nothing more to fear from his administration.

The platform adopted by the Chicago convention, which was dictated by Mr. Roosevelt himself, was a sufficient surrender to the trust combinations and the tariff-sheltered monopolies. The party's declaration on the subject of tariff fell far below Mr. Roosevelt's own previous professions and below even Mr. McKinley's last utterances. In the matter of regulating trusts, the party trends so lightly and delicately around them, that their repose is in no danger of being disturbed.

Mr. Roosevelt's own acts constitute an interpretation of the platform which goes far beyond the original document in reassuring the monopoly magnates.

Mr. Knox, who had the distinction of being the only attorney-general who had successfully attacked a criminal combination, at the behest of the railroad and trust magnates was taken out of the attorney-generalship and put into the Senate.

For Knox in the attorney-generalship Mr. Roosevelt substituted Secretary of the Navy Moody, who goes into this important office as a makeshift, with the announcement that on the 4th of March he will return to his corporation practice.

Mr. Moody likely, in the interim, to conduct a vigorous legal campaign against the corporate monopolies?

Mr. Cortelyou, a painstaking, industrious official, is taken out of the bureau of commerce and labor, where too much industry might be distasteful and dangerous to the trusts, and is made Mr. Roosevelt's campaign manager, with the job of "frying the fat" out of the big monopoly interests. His place is taken by Metcalf of California, whose sole claim to recognition is the fact that he hails from the territory of the Southern Pacific.

To crown this most humiliating and abject surrender to corporate interests, Mr. Roosevelt appoints to the secretaryship of the navy Mr. Paul Morton, second vice-president of the Santa Fe railway, a recent convert to Republicanism, but an able railroad man, who will see that the railroads are well represented in the President's cabinet.

Mr. Roosevelt has given hostages to the lords of high finance and the captains of industry, who want absolute command in their fields of activity. He has done homage to them. He has supplemented a platform which suits them with cabinet guarantees that the pledges of the platform will be kept.

But while President Roosevelt has sacrificed his ideals to politics he has proven himself a skillful politician. If his effort to combine the support of the monopoly interests with the support of the jingoes to whom his spectacular militarism appeals is not successful, it will be because the people refuse to be fooled or dazzled and are offered a more trustworthy candidate and a better platform by the Democratic party.

With a canvass for the governorship and the prosecution of men higher up, Mr. Folk will have his hands full. Let us hope he may have enough strength and ubiquity to do both with success.

MASCULINE AND FEMININE QUALITIES.
Among the objections to co-education urged by President Stanley Hall is that "girls do not develop pride in distinctively feminine qualities or the grace and charm of their young womanhood."

What are distinctively feminine qualities? Are they illustrated by the clinging, helpless woman, the woman who faints when good form demands an attack of vertigo?

Or does the woman best declare her femininity who boasts red blood and strong muscles and can take care of herself in any circumstances?

The ideal feminine qualities change with changing social ideals and grow as natural powers unfold.
Nobody likes a mannish woman, but cannot a woman be strong without being mannish—strong, self-reliant, confident?

The ideal of both masculine and feminine qualities has grown wonderfully since the days of Achilles and Helen. And it will continue to grow. What influence for good or evil there may be in co-education, it is safe to say that men will not become less womanly as they become more self-reliant, nor will men become less manly as they become gentler and more considerate of women.

Mr. Root warned the Yale Law School seniors against the habit of exceeding the limit set by the law to official power. Long and intimate association with Mr. Roosevelt probably opened his eyes to the danger. But if the matter was so important why didn't he mention it at the Chicago convention?

PRESIDENT FRANCIS' WISE SUGGESTION.

In a statement to the New York World concerning the conditions and prospects of the Exposition, President Francis gives assurance that the Exposition expects to meet every obligation and shows from the progressive increase of attendance that the prospect is bright.

Speaking of publicity, he makes a timely and reasonable appeal to the press for co-operation. He says the management has not neglected publicity, but has devoted a great deal of money, labor and care to the work; but he adds truly, all of their efforts are futile without the hearty co-operation of the press.

President Francis points out what may be designated as the obligations of the press in connection with the Exposition. He suggests that they are three-fold—to their readers, to their country and to their states. The Exposition, he says, does not belong to St. Louis, nor to Missouri, but to the United States and to every state. The nation has invested millions in the Exposition. It has given it indorsement and liberal support. Every state in the Union has invested liberally in the Exposition. Every state has an interest in its success. All the people have an interest in its success; not merely its pecuniary success, but its popular success. It is a great educational and industrial project, designed for the common benefit of all the states and all the nations. The greater the attendance the greater the success of every state participating in it and of every exhibitor from every part of the world.

In the matter of obligations of the press to its readers, he points out that the Exposition embraces exhibits in art, industry and ethnology offering material and information of the greatest interest to the student and to the curious, which could not possibly be gathered without enormous expense and arduous labor. It would require a trip around the world to see the sights within the gates of the Exposition. Many of the exhibits could not possibly be seen outside of the Exposition even by a globe trotter.

All of this is true. The newspaper which regards the Exposition as anything less than a great opportunity to find most interesting material for pictures and articles for its readers and to promote the common interest, not only of all the people of the United States, but of the people of the civilized world, takes a very narrow view. It misses a great deal and in failing to promote the success of the Exposition it fails to promote the success of its own state and of its own country.

The Exposition is not a commercial venture and cannot be advertised on a commercial basis. To attain the highest success and to confer the greatest benefit it is necessary that it have the cordial co-operation of the press and the people.

It turns out that when the famous dispatch demanding Perdicaris alive or Raisuli dead was sent, the American citizen was practically a free man. Anyhow it was not communicated to the bandit. So it was, after all, a bit of buncombe, useful in Chicago, but mere surplusage in Tangiers. Thus is heroism manifested.

PARKER'S GROWING STRENGTH.

Two significant statements in yesterday's news showed unmistakably the drift of Democratic sentiment toward Judge Parker.

Senator Gorman in a formal statement denied the persistent reports that he has been a party to a combination, the object of which is to prevent the nomination of Judge Parker. Senator Gorman further said that "in no case since the adoption of the two-thirds rule has any nomination been prevented when any candidate has had a majority of the convention, and where that majority is composed of delegates from Democratic states they have always controlled the convention."

This is about as straight a pointer as this astute politician could give by implication that the nomination of Judge Parker is assured. For, as the Post-Dispatch has shown, the delegates from every surely Democratic state, and from the doubtful states whose votes are essential to Democratic success, are either instructed for the New York candidate or are friendly to him as first or second choice.

The Maryland senator went a step farther in his most significant prognostication. "I have perfect confidence," he said, "that the convention will adopt a sound, conservative platform and nominate a ticket which will command the confidence of the country." Only Judge Parker, or a Democrat equally antithetical to President Roosevelt, can meet this expectation.

On the same day John P. Hopkins, the leader of the Illinois delegation, said: "We will go into no combination which will injure Judge Parker. We will certainly go into none that includes the followers of Mr. Bryan."

These statements give the finishing stroke to the inherently improbable story that Illinois and Maryland are in a combination to help the obstructionists and the mercenaries obtain a one-third minority to control the nomination.

All the other real candidates either have taken themselves out of the contest or have been eliminated by the stern logic of events. The drift toward Judge Parker increases as the time of the convention draws near. Nothing can prevent his nomination except the unthinkable failure of the majority to rule where it has the power to rule.

The "vacation without pay" in a time of alleged high tariff prosperity, has doubtless come from Uncle Russell Sage's economical suggestion. The furlough without pay, which has just been started by the Pennsylvania railroad after laying off 10,000 to 15,000 employees, is almost as depressing as a soup-house.

GRANDJURY AFTER GAMBLERS.

With commendable good sense the grandjury has requested the board of police commissioners to issue a search warrant authorizing the police to enter and search any part of any steamboat, and clean out the gambling paraphernalia. If the order is honestly executed it will make an end of gambling on the excursion steamers.

Since the exposure in these columns of the swindling games carried on on these steamers the gamblers have concealed the implements of their trade while in port and opened up as soon as the boats get beyond the jurisdiction of the St. Louis authorities.

This order, if issued, will assure the destruction of the paraphernalia. It can hardly escape the search.

The grandjury is performing a public service in this matter.

Mr. Abernethy has at least the glad satisfaction of not having his mail mixed with that of other people.

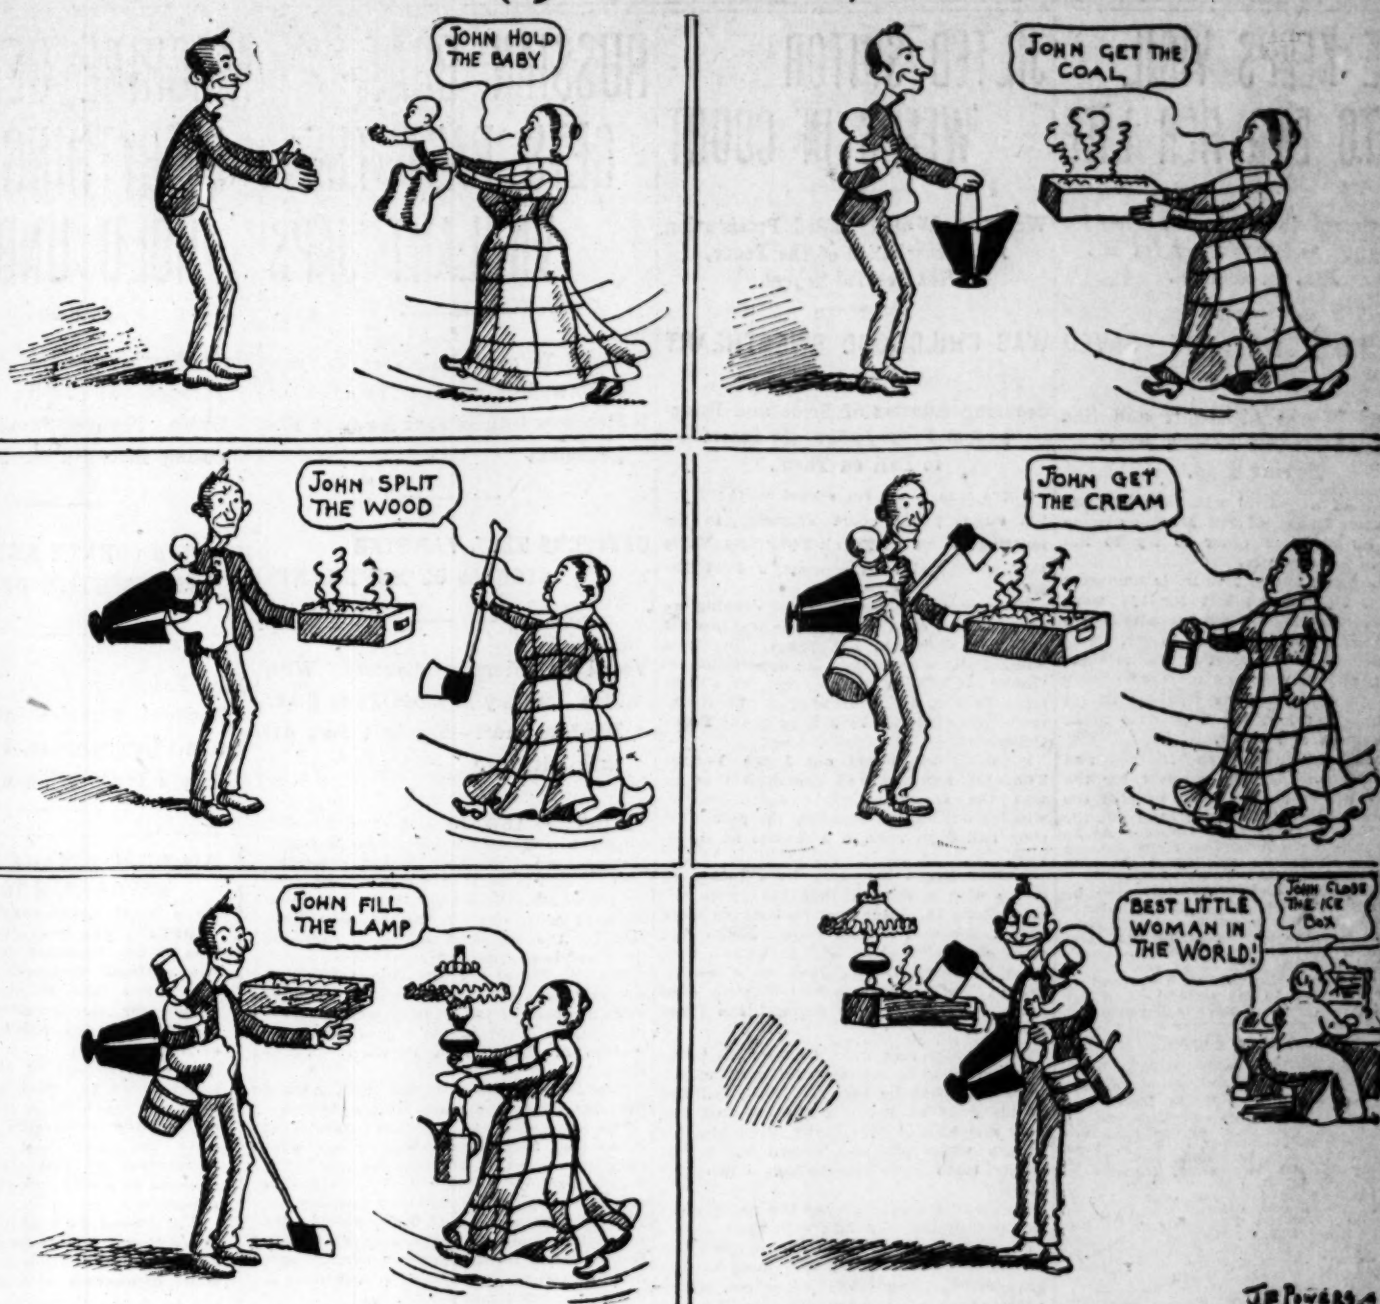

One of Arkansas' best exhibits is Louis Ferrine, who found $100 and left it with the police for its owner.

The writer of hymns who has been arrested in New York for shoplifting must have met with reverses.

The mutual admiration of Mr. Knox and Mr. Roosevelt is very beautiful.

By THE SOCIETY GIRL

"A BELLEVILLE servant," said the Society Girl, "fed a diamond ring to a pig in a mess of pea hulls."

"If they sell that pig," said the Club Woman, "they ought to weigh him on jeweler's scales. But did you see that Santos-Dumont's airship was ruined? Yes; he had it in a box and left the lid off and went away and somebody punched holes in it—the airship, I mean. Mr. Brown says you never can tell what will happen when you take the lid off, and I suppose that's true, though I'm sure I don't know what he means."

"Do you know, some people are mean enough to talk of Santos-Dumont's reluctance to make an ascension on the Fourth? But I am sure there is nothing in that, because Mr. Brown says Santos is in thorough sympathy with American institutions. You know, his financial ability is unquestioned."

"Besides, he was so grief-stricken when he found the slits in his balloon. Why, in his frenzy, he seized the cut edges and tore the silk more! I confess I did think this childish; but Mr. Brown won't listen to a word against the aeronaut. He says Santos knows what he is doing."

"I think, though, in spite of Mr. Brown's position—he calls it philosophy—that this vandalism is terrible for Santos-Dumont. Just think of his reputation!"

"What is Mr. Brown's philosophy?" asked the Society Girl.

"He says we shouldn't be surprised at explosions this time of year."

"But I can't see," said the Society Girl, "why a diamond fed to a pig should remind you of Santos-Dumont."

"Well," said the Club Woman, "both—what is that horrid slang phrase? O, yes; both are in bad."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Seasonable Query.

When that wily insect, a wicked June fly, buzzing blithely as speeding onward it goes.

On fast-fleeting wings, unseen by the eye, And lights on the tips of a sensitive nose, Or perchance on the top of a pate that is bald.

To do its dire "stunt," working overtime there With busy feet—"red hot" they are called—Say, wouldn't it justify even a preacher to swear?

A VICTIM.

The trouserless Igorrotes are dangerous to the morals of civilized people, how about the nudity displayed in the paintings, and particularly in sculpture and the statuary? The feminine world especially seem to admire the latter.

Your very timely editorial in today's paper hits a rather sore bump of these hypocrites.

Discomfort at Union Station.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Having had occasion to go to our splendid Union Station four times in the last week, I have been shocked at the manner in which the traveling public is treated by the officials governing that place. In the first place on each occasion I have seen hundreds of women and children sitting on hand baggage or leaning against the railings. They are not permitted to sit on the steps lately erected. On one occasion this morning I saw dozens of them sit-

Should Be Abated.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Everything out at the Fair comes up to the ad, but the Post-Dispatch has a whiff of the awful stench under the middle railroad bridge near the Washburn station? A reporter with even a low-power nose could get a column out of it. If he could take an ice man's pick he could carry back with him a chunk of it, and generally the stink is so strong and so all-pervading that it could be photographed even with a hand camera. All the same, it ought not to be there. It is not in the Fair advertisements and in a matter of this kind St. Louis ought not to give more than is advertised.

"The Oil Can of the Administration"

Cortelyou's Career, From Clerk to National Chairman.

BY JAMES CREELMAN.

"Cortelyou is the oil can of the Roosevelt administration," said a friend of the secretary of commerce and labor. "He makes the machinery run smoothly." There is no better illustration of the value of attention to the little things of life than the career of the soft-spoken, tactful young cabinet officer, who, in his forty-second year, has been selected by President Roosevelt to be the managing head of the great Republican party.

It was to make his son a human oil-can that the shrewd old Earl of Chesterfield wrote so many letters on the importance of cultivating the minor virtues of manners and conversation.

Eight years ago Mr. Cortelyou was an obscure clerk earning a small salary. To-day he directs one of the departments of the government and has been named as chairman of the Republican national committee. His progress to power has been as even and noiseless as a sunrise. The grizzled captains of politics hardly know whether to laugh or swear at the advent of Mr. Roosevelt's young private secretary in chief place of party authority. Ping-pong has reached that eminence without spending a dollar in politics.

It is not always necessary to have genius to succeed even in the sordid and cynical world of politics. Men have eaten their hearts out in the vain attempt to rise by heroic struggles with great problems, while others have achieved fame and fortune by industry in small things and delicate strokes of amiable politeness. The oil-can is as necessary as the lever.

Mr. Cortelyou is a man of singularly graceful personality. Everybody likes him. Everybody is glad to see him. He makes no enemies. According to his theory of life a man cannot afford to have an enemy, even an humble enemy. The shabby fellow who storms your office today may be a power in the community next year. Therefore, speak to him gently, send him away with a smile. Never affect a contemptuous manner. That is the way of the fool. In the day of small things plan patiently for the day of great things. A polite word costs nothing. It may turn out to be a good investment. As a spark of fire may turn a city into ashes, so an impatient gesture or irritable word may kindle a hatred great enough to destroy a career.

There is much in the life of Mr. Cortelyou that is worth studying. He started out as a boy to be a musician, and with that idea in view entered the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston. In 1882 he studied stenography. In 1884 he was stenographer and private secretary to the appraiser of the port of New York. Presently he was principal in a college preparatory school in New York. In 1886 he again became private secretary to the appraiser of the port. Then he was employed as private secretary to the fourth assistant postmaster-general in Washington.

Most men in such positions lose hope early in life and settle down into the routine, irrevocably soiled. Not so with Mr. Cortelyou. Always smiling, always courteous, always ready to assume the life responsibilities of life, modest, industrious and patient, he attracted the attention of the big lumbering postmaster-general, and when President Cleveland asked for a confidential stenographer in the White House, Mr. Cortelyou was sent to him as the pleasantest and most willing young man in Washington. Later on he was made assistant private secretary to President McKinley.

Mr. McKinley's secretary was a man who felt himself to be too large for the petty details of his position. Perseverent visitors to the White House annoyed him. The small-try congressmen and his eight-hundred constituents, the country politicians full of inconsequential secrets for the presidential ear, the widow seeking a department ship-ship—these and others like them who thronged the corridor were impatiently turned over to his assistant. Finally, only those who visited the White House during the Spanish war can realize what Mr. Cortelyou's tact and good nature meant to the tired President and the anxious crowds trooping at his door. Finally, white faced, with dark, earnest eyes, smoothly brushed pompadour hair, faultlessly dressed, cool, quiet, pleasant and polite—his modest ministrations were continued from early morning till the White House lights went out at night.

"I don't know what I should do without Cortelyou," said Mr. McKinley. "He is my pillow."

When the President fell in a spray of blood at Buffalo it was Mr. Cortelyou's patient attention to details, his coolness and tact that produced order at the hour of that supreme national tragedy.

When President Roosevelt came rampaging into the White House, full of lusty indifference to the prejudices and "tyrannies" of Washington, the secretary who had smoothed the way of the most suave president in American history supplied the environment of his loud-voiced and impetuous successor with an atmosphere of courtesy. He softened the rough word and contemptuous shoulder shrug, explained the harsh criticism and made everybody feel that under the President's rugged exterior beat a sympathetic heart.

Not that Cortelyou is without strong parts. It is well known that he was constantly consulted by the two presidents in matters of grave importance. But had it not been for his attention to the despised art of being agreeable, he might never have had the ear of Mr. McKinley or Mr. Roosevelt, and have remained a poor clerk, instead of rising to a cabinet officer and titular head of the Republican party.

Mrs. Nagg and Mr.—

By ROY L. McCARDELL.
(Copyrighted 1904, by the Press Publishing Co.)

Now, Mr. Nagg, this string tied around your first finger is to remind you to get half a dozen nailing bottles. The string on your second finger is so you won't forget to get a package of pins and a bottle of paragon. I couldn't find any more string, so I have tied a loop of black thread around your little finger so you won't forget to stop at the furniture store and buy a crib for the baby.

"I have tied the pink ribbon around your wrist so you will not forget that you have strings around your fingers to remember things by."

"I suppose you would like to say you are ashamed to wear strings on your fingers? That is because you have a petty spirit. Be broad, be big, be above such things!"

"You should not care how you looked so long as you were conscious of doing what was just and right and kind to your wife, your baby and your home! Other people! Why should you care what other people think?"

"I knew you would let me go down street to buy these things when I haven't a decent pair of gloves to my name. I ripped the finger of that new pair of kid gloves, and I would look a sight going down street wearing a ripped glove or with bare hands! You would not care how other people stared at me as if I were a beggar woman."

"I never ask you to do me a little favor but what this is the way you act. You sulk and gloom for hours, and say you are very busy and have no time to go shopping. You say you will be sure to forget it because you are worried almost out of your head about a lot of things these days. So when I tie a few strings around your fingers you act even worse and say people will laugh at you. It is perfectly respectable to wear strings around your fingers to remember things."

"Brother Willie told me that he heard of a man out West who was so forgetful that he used to drive other people's cattle away and sell them, thinking they were his own."

"Finally his neighbors, so he would not forget himself again and drive off their cattle, tied a big rope around his neck to remind him. They had a jolly affair of it, and the man never made the mistake again, for the rope was tied around his neck."

"He was so cured of his forgetful habits that he never did it again, and then all the neighbors, to celebrate the 'rope necktie party,' as they called it, bought the man a nice wooden overcoat."

"Willie told me all about it, and he suggested that I tie a rope around your neck, so you wouldn't be so forgetful. But I couldn't find a piece of rope without cutting the clothing. But, never mind, dear little brother Willie has run out to see if he can find a piece of rope, the thoughtful child!"

"Why do you grit your teeth at mention of brother Willie's name? Oh, Mr. Nagg, how can you hate that poor boy so, when his only thought is of you, and he encourages me to watch you and look after you and not let you out of our sight!"

"I have to think for us all. I never forget anything, because my mind is on what I am doing. I am not thinking of the books at the office, of how dull business is and a thousand and one trifling things that you worry and growl about."

"There, he has gone! He is so thoughtless that he wouldn't wait till brother Willie came back with a rope, and the poor child will be so disappointed."

"Here's Willie, now! Run after Mr. Nagg, Willie, and tell him to come back right away. There are a whole lot of things I forgot to tell him to get!"

"Is it any wonder I am driven out of my wits? This is a fair sample of what I have to put up with, and yet I never complain!"

MATRIMONY AND THE COQUETTE

By Nixola Greeley-Smith, Granddaughter of Horace Greeley.

Written for the Post-Dispatch.

Within five minutes after the ceremony the bride said to one of her best friends: "I felt like turning back from the altar. I'm married, but I don't have a month."

"Why do you say that?" asked her friend.

"I just feel that way. It is fate," replied the bride. Yesterday's paper.

Within a month after this interesting announcement by a fashionable bride, a chronicler in yesterday's newspapers, she had left her husband and was suing for a divorce.

It is difficult to conceive how any woman could enter upon the most serious undertaking of her life with the feelings of doubt and foreboding to which this remarkable young woman confessed on her very wedding day. Starting with such indifference and insouciance, the inevitable result.

It is left to the individual reader to determine for him or herself whether the wreck of this strange matrimonial enterprise was due to sheer fickleness on the young woman's part, or to reasons worthy of serious consideration.

Now, the fickleness of man is so proverbial that it is the average woman there is something not altogether unpleasant in the occasional emotional vacillation of members of her own sex.

Whoever in her own life or in the lives of her friends, has suffered from the ever-changing fancy of mere fickle man will not wholly deplore the havoc wrought in masculine ranks by the accomplished and generally inconstant female coquette, for they recognize that for every heart she breaks she likewise breaks a lance for her entire sex, and thus enables every member of it to wreak a vicarious vengeance on perfidious man. The average woman has such a natural vocation for constancy even to the unworthiest man that she regards with a certain wonder the coquette's progress from one broken heart to another. And the wonder is not untinged with respect, and even awe.

However, all women who feel themselves endowed with the various frivolous gifts necessary to the equipment of successful coquettes should regard themselves as high priests of feminine vengeance, born into the world for the especial purpose of "getting even" with mankind.

They should not marry, for marriage, if successful, inevitably puts an end to their career of coquetry and consequent usefulness. In the interests of womankind they should sacrifice their occasional temptation to commit themselves definitely for life by marrying some one of their numerous admirers and continue their triumphant progress over masculine hearts just as long as there are hearts for them to walk over.

It will naturally occur to them at some time—usually in the full radiance of a mid-summer noon—that it would be much nicer to have their own hearts broken just for a change. But they should regard these promptings as of the evil one and resolutely suppress them. The successful coquette does not take love seriously. If she marries she is not apt to take marriage seriously—for awhile, to be sure, if she marries for love, as she is apt to do, she becomes the most subdued, domestic little housewife imaginable. The role is a new one and until the novelty wears off she throws herself into it heart and soul. But in a year or so she begins once more to sigh for conquests. Her ancient thirst for general masculine admiration revives and she either makes her husband unhappy by once more entering the lists or herself miserable by standing aside and watching the successful progress of younger rivals.

Besides this she must inevitably feel some remorse for having abandoned her great mission of squaring accounts of fickleness with man. Some coquettes are born, but more of them are made by the very inconstancy that later they successfully, though perhaps unconsciously, avenge.

THE AMERICAN INVASION OF FRANCE.

In Nice I rode in American trolley cars over American rails, this electric traction system being operated by an American concern—the Thomson-Houston Co., writes a foreign correspondent of Leslie's Weekly. At L'Imoges I visited outlying farms that were operated entirely by American farm machinery, and dairies similarly equipped. At Nîmes the people drove to Monte Carlo in American carriages, the horses wearing American harness. At Leige American shotguns and rifles were shown to me in three different shops. At Lyons, where I visited the great silk mills, I found the workmen making the packing boxes, the very boxes in which silks are packed for shipment to New York, of American planed boards. In every factory I found American labor-saving tools, and in half the offices I saw American typewriters.

At all ports I watched the unloading of cargoes of American coal, and a French merchant told me that his countrymen are convinced that the United States are about to supplant Great Britain in the European coal markets as the chief purveyor of that fuel. On the railroad on which I traveled from Paris to Orleans, American coal was used exclusively. In Paris I saw no end of American bicycles, and many of the French cycles were equipped with American tires. At my Paris hotel I noticed that the window fastenings and door handles were supplied by a firm in Connecticut. In a little hotel in Dijon I was served with sweet potatoes from North Carolina, these being actually among the first sweet potatoes used in France. Refrigerated American beef could be had in any first-class restaurant. The elevator that carried me upstairs at the hotel in Paris was from a New York maker, and the electric fans in the dining room were imported from that self-same American city.

Now, how is it that we are thus capturing the Frenchman and his franc? First of all, our manufacturers are wise enough to send commercial travelers into France with samples. Catalogues are sent ahead of the agent—beautiful catalogues in French, with the prices given in francs, not in dollars, and with weights and measures given in the metric system, not in pounds as we know pounds, and not in miles as we know miles. Second, our manufacturers are giving young men a business training in France. For our manufacturers understand that it is just as important that their representatives in that country shall be acquainted with French business methods as with the French language.

These young Americans come to Paris

ABOUT KINGS AND QUEENS.

Members of the court of King Charles II of England were innocent in some of their amusements, if not in others. Among their favorite games were "blind man's buff" and "hunt the slipper." Pepys mentions that one day he found the Duke and Duchess of York and all the great ladies seated upon the carpeted floor playing "I love my love with an A because he is so-and-so, and I hate him with an A because he is this and that."

Queen Anne of England and her husband George, Prince of Denmark, had great similarity of taste. The two subjects that interested them most were horses and dinner. A Jacobite allusion to these pardonable weaknesses runs thus:

"There's Mary the daughter, there's Willy the character, There's George the drinker, there's Anne the eater."

That King George of England was not popular with his subjects is evident from the following epigram, which was published in London on the death of Queen Caroline:

"O, cruel death! Why hast thou been unkind To take our queen and leave our king to hind?"

Is an ordeal which all women approach with indescribable fear, for nothing compares with the pain and horror of child-birth. The thought of the suffering and danger in store for her, the expectant mother of all pleasant anticipations of the coming event, and casts over her a shadow of gloom which cannot be shaken off. Thousands of women have found that the use of Mother's Friend during pregnancy robs confinement of all pain and danger, and insures safety to life of mother and child. This scientific liniment is a god-send to all women at the time of their most critical trial. Not only does Mother's Friend carry women safely through the perils of child-birth, but its use gently prepares the system for the coming event, prevents "morning sickness," and other discomforts of this period.

No Explanation Is Offered—John F. Hunt of Missouri to Make "Short Talk."

NEW YORK, June 29.—For the first time in many years David B. Hill has not been asked to speak at the Tammany society's Fourth of July celebration. Always he has been invited, and usually he has sent a sound, Democratic-Republican patriotic letter.

Invitations were sent, as usual, to Grover Cleveland, William J. Bryan and many distinguished Democrats. Letters from all these will be read in Tammany Hall. Arrangements for the celebration are complete. The "long talks" will be made by Gov. Lucius F. C. Garvin of Rhode Island, ex-Gov. George S. Boutwell of Massachusetts, who was President Grant's secretary of the treasury, and Webster Davis, who was assistant secretary of the interior under McKinley.

"Short talks" will be given by John T. Hunt of Missouri, John F. Shafer of Colorado, S. D. Van Dusen of New Jersey, S. J. Bowie of Alabama, William E. Smith of Texas, C. H. Dickerman of Pennsylvania, Theodore F. Klutts of North Carolina, Joseph A. Goulden and Frederick L. C. Keating of New York.

WARSHIPS SAIL FOR HAYTI

Rear Admiral Sigsbee Will See That Little Republic Is Not Too Greatly Humiliated.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Rear Admiral Sigsbee, commanding the Caribbean squadron, has returned to Hayti on his flagship, the Newark, and the Bancroft followed him today from San Juan. He will guard American interests and keep an eye on the French and German warships (one each) ordered to Port-au-Prince to demand reparation for the insult to the French and German ministers, who were stoned by the palace guard.

It is not feared that either of the foreign ships will take any action that will cause this country anxiety, but it was decided that it would be good policy to have American ships on the scene.

COURT'S DIGNITY THREATENED.

But Clerk Explained "Dam-If-I-Know" Was Name of Litigant.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, June 30.—"Dam-If-I-Knew," said Clerk Alexander Cobrie, replying to Justice Kelly, in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn, yesterday.

"What? What is that, Mr. Cobrie?" said the judge, in utter amazement.

The court had been puzzling over a paper in the case, and handing it to the clerk, had asked: "What is the name of the plaintiff in this action?"

The assistant of the judge at the apparent levity of the answer he received.

"The plaintiff's name, your honor," explained the clerk, gravely, "is Giuseppe Amadio."

"Ah!" said the judge, smiling, as he signed the paper, "that is intelligible."

The judge defeated the Sullivan, Mo., team Sunday by the score of 7 to 1. The game was like to arrange games with all out-of-town teams. Address 1300 Dolman street.

ELWOOD WILL BEAR WATCHING

It has always taken a first-class colt to win the St. Louis Derby and next Saturday's race will be no exception. In fact, the indications now are that the highest class field of horses that ever faced the starter in this stake will line up before Mr. Dade.

English Lad promises to be the favorite for the big stake. He arrived at the Fair Grounds today in charge of W. E. Phillips. Fred Cook's trainer, Mr. Phillips, says the great colt shipped fine from Chicago and will go to the post in splendid fettle for the Derby. Eddie Dominick, who will ride English Lad in the St. Louis Derby, pronounces the son of Reginald the best colt he ever threw a leg over, and Dominick has ridden some good ones in his day.

Elwood, another formidable candidate for the St. Louis Derby, is due to arrive from Chicago this morning. Elwood is by Free Knight-Petticoat, and was bred in Missouri. He belongs to the great McChester, Durnell has given Elwood a special preparation for the big stake. Elwood has already captured two derbies, namely, the Kentucky and Lexington. Like all the Free Knights, heavy going is supposed to be his forte.

Next to English Lad, Brewer Schorr's Moharib, which finished third in the World's Fair handicap, is the most favored local candidate for the St. Louis Derby. Schorr has already won two St. Louis derbies, the Sam. Phipps and Silverdale, and he expects to make it three straight just Saturday with Moharib.

MISSION WORKERS BALK THE MAYOR

Case Against Rev. Fred C. Thomas for Street Preaching Dropped by the City.

WRONG CHARGE PREFERRED

Dismissal Not Wanted as It Was Hoped the Law Might Be Knocked Out.

The case of the city against Rev. Fred C. Thomas, who was arrested at the order of Mayor Wells, June 15, at Twelfth and Olive streets, on charge of disturbing the peace by preaching on the street without a license, was nolle prossed in the City Hall Police Court Thursday morning at the request of City Prosecutor Thomas Anderson, who stated that it had been found that Mr. Thomas should have been arrested for refusing to move on when ordered and not for disturbing the peace, as he was not preaching at the time.

Attorney J. M. Rollins, who appeared for Mr. Thomas, made a vigorous protest against the manner of settling the case. He wanted it to go to trial. A large number of mission workers and friends of Thomas were in the courtroom. Mayor Wells, who was the chief witness against Mr. Thomas, did not appear. Thomas is secretary of the Union Mission, 247 Morgan street. He was arrested while at Twelfth and Olive streets, at the order of Mayor Wells, who in passing by, noticed him in the street and asked him if he had a license for preaching. Mr. Thomas said he had applied for a license, but had been refused. He also refused to take Mayor Wells' order to stop, and at the direction of the latter, he was arrested by Patrolman Charles Leidke.

No further charge will be made against Mr. Thomas, it is said, as the city is disposed to let the matter drop.

"Boro-Formal" (Elmer & Amend) used as tooth and mouthwash in the morning leaves mouth sweet and pure all day.
